

君子 learns ceaselessly<sup>83</sup> for its own sake<sup>164</sup>

from good<sup>35, 71</sup> by accumulating a harmony of lesser virtues<sup>148, 202</sup> reverence

avoids disgrace

magnanimity
wins the populace

trustworthiness<sup>202</sup> speaks for itself

diligence
achieves results

kindness grants wherewithal to employ the people and in putting these into practice everywhere<sup>202</sup> balances and is desirous without being covetous there is nothing to covet when one has desired and attained goodness for its own sake 29

benevolent without being wasteful benefitting people based on an understanding of what is truly beneficial to them 234

imposing labor upon the people without incurring their resentment only doing so at the right times and on right projects 234

awe-inspiring without being severe dignified in appearance respectful in gaze
233

grand without being arrogant action does not exceed words 36

behavior accords with context 98-99

from bad<sup>35, 71</sup> by searching for vice in the self before others<sup>35, 166</sup> cruelty

executing people without having instructed them

oppression
expecting perfection without warning of impending mistakes

234

being a pest
demanding punctuality without yourself being timely

officiousness being consistently stingy in disbursing funds and rewards and upon finding vice, resolves confusion and<sup>135</sup> self-cultivates<sup>93</sup> ceaselessly<sup>31</sup>